MEET OUR NEW DIRECTOR

SAQCC Gas would like to welcome Gadibolae Dihlabi as a new director representing LPGSA.

Gadibolae is a versatile and results driven professional, with over 20 years experience across a number of disciplines - 15 years of which were spent in the petroleum industry and the rest in manufacturing and mining industries. She holds an MBA from Henley Business School where her research dissertation topic investigated the development of natural gas industry in RSA.

An energy industry (petroleum) professional, Gadibolae has contributed to the development and maintenance of the regulatory pricing structures for fuels and LPG. In addition, she was part of team that represented SAPIA membership in the development and negotiations of the petroleum industry sector codes and took a lead in many other transformational projects at SAPIA.

Having been involved in the industry's transformation initiatives, she recognises the importance of diversity and inclusiveness in the gas sector. She believes that to move towards the diversity agenda, we must have a clear intent towards it and actively promote and direct opportunities in the gas value chain towards women.

SAQCC Gas has a total number of 113 (approx. 2%) female practitioners, this is an unacceptably low number and work must start in driving the participation of women practitioners in this sector. I can only hope that my presence at SAQCC board will serve as a motivator for women to take up space in the industry.

SAQCC Gas and DoPW

SAQCC Gas recently had session with the Department of Public Works and Infrastructure in Kimberly. The intent was two-fold, firstly to understand the working of the SAQCC Gas, secondly, an improved understanding of refrigerant gases. In between safety, compliance and gas tender requirements were discussed.

We're planning to strengthen our relationship with different government departments by doing the same in the future. This will help to ensure that projects are awarded to the deserving gas practitioners and to ensure that our industry is safe."
